Minkkinen, Allison in the running for regents spot

Two UMD students are in the running for the available position of Student Regent for the University of Minnesota.

Tim Allison, a senior from Duluth who is majoring in economics and political science, is one of the few students left in the running. Another UMD student, David Minkkinen, a senior from Cloquet who is majoring in business, is also a candidate for this position.

Last month, 28 students were nominated for the position. After interviews with the applicants, the Regents Advisory Candidate Committee picked eight students to come back for second interviews. Of those eight students, six of them are from the Twin Cities with voting privileges on the Board of Regents and once elected, the student will serve a six-year term. The position is unpaid with reimbursement given for travel, food and lodging expenses. According to a state statute, students eligible for this position must either be an enrolled student or a graduate of the University of Minnesota within the last five years. Wally Hilke, a graduate of the University of Minnesota Law School, is the current student representative on the Board of Regents whose term is up this year.

Once on the University of Minnesota Board of Regents, the Board oversees policy and makes sure that it is followed. According to Minkkinen, "the new regents must support and work with the president. They must also have a good

Blue ribbon panel suggests changes for UM system

Timothy L. Franklin
News Editor

Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich announced plans to formulate a Blue Ribbon Commission on March 22, 1988, to look at the financial management structure and procedures at the University of Minnesota. This Commission was appointed in the wake of controversies over the remodeling of Eastcliffe and the news about a reserve fund which legislators and regents were not aware of.

A section of this report was prepared by the Senior Advisors on Governance. One of the issues they looked at was the administrative structure of the University of Minnesota and how it affects the coordinate campuses in the University system.

UMD Chancellor Lawrence Ianni said, "There isn't a single thing in the report that you can quarrel about. There should be a cooperative spirit among people in the University system."

The Senior Advisors are Harold Enarson, president emeritus from Ohio State University; William Friday, chancellor emeritus from the University of North Carolina; and Arthur Hansen, president emeritus at Purdue University and Texas A&M.

The Senior Advisors wrote that "there is a strong belief on the part of some people, including legislators, that the University should be restructured in such a manner that a new position be created, that of a chief executive to oversee the entire multi-campus system including the Twin Cities campus which would have its own CEO."

They feel that this will not be necessary and may even create more problems in administration.

"One would suspect that the system president might well stand in the shadow of the main campus chancellor. If, on the other hand, the system president is a strong leader whose attention would be primarily focused on the main campus, it would be highly probable that competition and conflict between the president and the main campus chancellor would eventually erupt," they wrote.

The report also noted that if a change was to occur, it would create another layer of authority in the management of the University of Minnesota and the costs of such a change would outweigh the benefits.

Ianni noted that "the Senior Advisors have worked in a 'flag-ship' type of system. Harold Enarson was the president at Ohio State, and they never developed the branch campuses. I think that every place they have had such a system, the branch campuses have been underdeveloped."

The Senior Advisors proposed several recommendations which they feel will resolve the concerns of the present system.

First, that coordinate campus chancellors be given more managerial authority on their campus in regard to personnel and student policies, tenure and appointment procedures and financial and physical plant planning.

Second, that campus chancampus, while two of the candidates are from UMD.

Over the next two weeks, the Regents Advisory Candidate Committee will submit four University of Minnesota students' names to the Minnesota House Education Committee for discussion. The Education Committee will then recommend one student to the Minnesota Legislature for voting by Feb. 1. The Minnesota House and Senate will both vote on the recommendation by late April.

There is only one student working relationship with him. This position would take up a great deal of time."

Allison feels there are some major issues facing the University currently. "The Regents must start to rebuild and restore credibility with the citizens of Minnesota and the legislature. The University also needs to get a hold of its finances. We currently have an old and complex financial system. This must be changed. We also have a lot of

Students brew over campus alcohol policy

Russell O. Smith
Staff Writer

A law that was passed by Congress in 1984 requires all states to raise their legal drinking age to 21. This was the beginning of the end for those students who live on campus and want to drink alcohol.

Beginning in 1985, parties with kegs were banned from the campus. 1986 saw the elimination of alcohol from the dorms, and finally in 1988 alcohol became illegal on the UMD campus, including UMD housing.

According to John Weiske, associate director of UMD housing, of the approximately 2,460 students who currently live on campus, only about five percent are of legal drinking age. The decision to ban alcohol in all of housing was made just before the room draw which takes place in the spring. Letters were sent to students notifying them of the policy change with the option of getting a refund if they chose not to stay. About 40 students did.

According to UMD Campus Police Captain Harry Michalick, while there is still a fair amount of students on campus who do drink, the new policy has had a positive affect all around. He said that problems in housing where the police are needed, such as disorderly conduct and vandalism, have dropped about one-third from last year.

During the 1985 school year, there were 30 incidents of disorderly conduct. In 1986, the first year of restrictions, that number was cut in half and then in half again in 1987.

Michalick said that the fall of 1988 was very quiet, and that he has not issued a ticket in the past five weeks. He expects the alcohol-related problems to increase when Spring Quarter begins, but still be far below previous years.

According to Jeff Anderson, a student who lives in the University Suites, "It's too hard to stop students from drinking if they want to. It's better if they drink on campus than going off campus to drink. It's unfair to students who are of age, and it's not going to stop me from drinking in the dorms."

they have the non-drinking policy, but I feel that it is unfair to students like myself.

Tracy Bolen, a resident advisor at Stadium Apartments, stated that he feels the policy has definitely been for the betterment of student life at UMD.

Weiske said the no-alcohol policy has had an all-around positive effect on life in UMD housing.

He added that the dorms are quieter, there is less gar-roommate problems has dropped and the severity of the conflicts has decreased.

Scott Sherin, assistant director of housing-residence halls, expressed some concerns about the no-alcohol policy in that students who have a serious drinking problem will be more secretive about their drinking habits. He went on to praise the UMD Alcohol Education Program as extremely helpful with students who do have a problem.

fense, a written warning is issued to the student and a behavioral contract is set up between the student and the resident advisor. The second offense requires referral to the residence life specialist, Tim Rich. The student is placed on probation with the possibility of being assigned work hours, or if a problem appears to exist, he/she is referred to an on-campus alcohol education class. The third offense is an immediate termination of Freshmen have had to entertain themselves with other types of beverages since alcohol is no longer allowed in the dorms. Here a group of freshmen partake in Minnesota's finest dairyland moo juice.

The UMD Plant Services department is challenging any other department or campus group to see who can form the largest team of walkers for the March of Dimes Walk America on April 29. For more information call Jeff Carlson at 726-7595.

Kirk Johnson, chief industrial engineer at the Duluth Missabe and Iron Range Railway Co. in Duluth, has been named director of UMD Plant Services effective Feb. 1. Johnson received his bachelor's degree and a master's in electrical engineering from the Twin Cities campus and later completed an MBA degree at UMD.

Ken Moran, photographer in Alumni and Media Relations, has six photographs included in the Second International Photographic Exhibition "China Through Foreigners' Eyes," which is on display at the Nationalities Cultural Palace in Beijing, China.

Dennis Adams, professor of child and family development, has had his new book, Media and Literacy, published by Charles C. Thomas Press. The book examines converging print, video and computer media. In addition, strategies for building dynamic and literate learning environments today are presented along with future possibilities for transforming the human ability to communicate and learn.

Independent-Republican legislative leaders last week urged Governor Perpich to request the resignation of all 12 regents. "With a new board, the public will know that the regents are part of the solution, not part of the old problem," said House minority leader William Schreiber and Senate minority leader Duane Benson in a letter to Perpich. Perpich rejected the request, which he said "would just keep the pot boiling." The University needs continuity at a time of administrative change, he said.

work in making final decisions about Commitment to Focus. It will be a major challenge to increase quality," Allison said.

Minkinen said that the greatest challenge will be to restore the credibility and respect of the University of Minnesota. "The Board must have someone on the board to accomplish that goal. We must be able to communicate with both the legislature and the public," Minkinen said.

One reason why Minkinen is running for the position is because he would like to represent the entire state if he was elected to the Board of Regents. "I would be a Regent who would look at the entire University interest. I wouldn't represent one constituency. I'm also running because it is a great opportunity to improve myself and the University over the next six years."

Minkinen has been active in the UMD Student Association over the last two years. This past year, he has been UMD's Student Representative to the Board of Regents and goes to Regent meetings monthly. He also sits on the Education Policy and Planning Committee on the Board. Allison said he wants to make a difference, and this is cellors and other main officers from their campuses should be at the Board of Regents meetings to give periodic reports of their operations.

Third, that the Board of Regents should consider forming a committee which could oversee coordinate campuses and agency needs which do not relate to the main campus.

Lastly, that recognition be given to individuals on all campuses who have earned it in order to reinforce the idea of a unified university.

Ianni said, "We are in a beautiful situation now. President Hasselmo sounds sincere that he wants to implement the recommendations which are in the Blue Ribbon Commission report. We need to get the Chancellors more involved in policy meetings."

Last Friday, the Report to the Governor of the Blue Ribbon Commission on Financial Management of the University of Minnesota was presented to the Regents.

According to Dave Minkinen, UMD's Student Representative to the Board of Regents, "the Regents were very supportive of the document. The president and the board will look seriously at all the recommendations that the panel made."

The Commission was chaired by Edson Spencer, chairman of both Honeywell Inc. and the Ford Foundation. The rest of the commission was comprised mostly of business leaders in the state of Minnesota. It also sought testimony from top University of-Minnesota. "From this experience, I have some knowledge of the finances of the University," he said. He has also been active in the UMD Student Association over the last three years.

Both UMD students feel confident about their chances of being selected for the position. Allison said, "I feel really confident about my chances. I've been told by many people in the University administration I have a good shot at it."

Dave Minkinen said, "I'm going to give it my best shot and see what happens. I figure I have a one out of eight chance which gives me a 12.5 percent chance of getting it. I really don't make it a profession to figure out my chances of winning contests."

The Regents Advisory Candidate Committee, which will recommend four students to the state legislator, is made up of 24 members. Included on the committee are former Governor Elmer Anderson, several university presidents from Minnesota and others who have a background in higher education.

AIDS and ignorance

Some things are better than sex, and some are worse, but there's nothing exactly like it.

-W.C. Fields

Sex and death. These two words when put together bring to mind another word -- AIDS.

The one disease that kills, the one that has no cure (at the present time), the one that everyone thinks they can't get.

Every time you turn on the television you see commercials about America's response to AIDS, you see ads in local newspapers, receive pamphlets in the mail and even hear jokes about the ignorance of AIDS. The editorial cartoon this week is a perfect example of that.

AIDS ignorance is about as widespread as the disease itself, and it seems to be burning like a wildfire out of control.

Unless you have led a very sheltered life for the past decade or so, you probably know that one way the AIDS virus can be transmitted is by sharing needles used for injecting drugs like heroin or amphetamines. Using these drugs alone is bad enough, but with the risk of AIDS looming overhead a person might think twice before he/she uses or shares needles.

People have to change their attitudes toward AIDS and realize that it can strike them or anyone else. This disease has no discrimination towards sex or sexual preference, and the virus can lay dormant in your body for years before it rears its ugly head.

There's an excellent commercial that is currently being broadcast about AIDS in which a man is comparing wearing a sock on his foot to save his life and wearing a condom while having sex to save his life.

It really is just that simple. Don't just take my word for it; stop by the Student Health Clinic or listen to any one of Surgeon General C. Evert Koop's speeches. Wearing a condom could save your life. Let's take this problem seriously and not let it take control of our lives.

Sex is a flame which uncontrolled may scorch; properly guided, it will light the torch of eternity.

Abortion issue argued again

Editor,

I offer a comment on Shelley Kovarik's stand on abortion ("Abortion is Murder") which seems to be that abortion on demand is murder, but that abortion in the case of rape or incest or when the life of the mother is threatened, is another story. How can this be? If abortion on demand is murder, this must be because the fetus is a person. And that, indeed, seems to be what Kovarik has in mind when she later talks about the personal value of new life. But if it's a person, it's a person even if conceived as the result of rape or incest. How can Kovarik (or George Bush, for that matter) feel abortion is ever justified even to save the life of the mother if she believes that the fetus is a person and hence that abortion is murder? Imagine an accused murderer trying to defend himself by pointing out that his victim had been conceived (years ago) as a result of rape, and hence that he hadn't committed murder.

Statesman not at fault

Editor,

I am responding to an article in your letter section. The article was in the Jan. 12 issue of the STATESMAN and needs to be addressed.

I am a very open-minded person, but I cannot let this opportunity pass by. The article, a letter from Arlene Kashata (Anishinabe Club), spoke about how racism and omission affect the American Indian today. She told of the fact that during the visit of the Russian delegation visit to UMD the Anishinabe Club and it's involvement with this event were overlooked (on purpose?) by the STATESMAN.

I feel that this attitude by minorities today is wrong. People who I have spoken to call this effect "racism reversal." It occurs when a person, an American Indian for example, actually believe that they were mistreated or omitted from society on purpose. This racism reversal puts the minority on defensive, automatically making them believe they were overlooked when in reality, it may have been a simple oversight (ex. Dec. 15, STATESMAN).

If a non-minority student group, the Math Club for example, was placed in that situation they would've probably thought that the STATESMAN hadn't known about the event and said "Oh well, next time we'll let the STATESMAN know about our event ahead of time," instead of taking the Anishinabe Club's point of view and inflating the whole event and playing on the fact that they are a minority and were mistreated for publicity. The fact of this matter is that people are people. We are all equal -- except in our minds, where some of us feel we should be treated better than others and then cry when we're treated just like everyone else.

Chemical weapons are not the answer

Bret L. Stanley
Opinion Writer

A beautiful sunset is something that not enough people in the world take time to look at.

Appreciation of a sunset or sunrise should be something as normal as waking up in the morning, but the world should also take time to appreciate the hard, cold facts of life, and the hard facts that I'm talking about here are chemical weapons.

Most people have heard of mustard gas and the vegetation killer known as "Agent Orange" used in the Vietnam War but do not understand the true significance of these and other chemical weapons.

The recent assumption that the Libyans are making chemical weapons is a justifiable concern of the United States' government as well as all other governments, but this only shadows the fact that all people should be concerned and knowledgeable about every country that manufactures these weapons.

If the Libyan government is only manufacturing medicinal products in their new plant, why did they give the press a tour at night and not even let anyone in to inspect the building?

Terrorist countries with the capabilities to produce these weapons should be at the top of our list of worries, but we should also deal with the fact that our own country is one of the biggest producers of chemical weapons in the world.

If someone is going to tell another country not to produce a weapon, they had better practice what they preach. Chemical weapons are dangerous to the existence of life on earth and should be banned by the world.

Going through army basic training gave me my first contact with chemical weapons only on a comparatively smaller scale. During one part of the training, each company was and still is required to don protective clothing and gas masks and walk through a building filled with tear gas.

The only difficult part of this task was that everyone was required to take off the masks while in the building. It was not a pleasant experience. Before anyone could leave the building all participants had to breathe. In other words, the situation was forced upon us so that we could truly appreciate our protective masks.

As the group ran out of the building, there were screams from grown men whose eyes and lungs were burning from the gas. There were people vomiting and running into trees because they couldn't see. And if you're lucky enough to get some of the gas on your skin, it burns like you've been scalded with boiling water. The effects wear off in a couple of hours.

The difference between tear gas and the real chemical weapons is as blatant as day and night. Where tear gas will make your eyes burn and water, mustard gas or something worse will burn your eyes until you're blind for life. If the United States Army was transporting one of its chemical bombs by air and the plane somehow went down, there would be thousands killed just by the spread of these gases throughout our environment.

And of course, America has to keep up with the Joneses when it comes to the Soviet Union. If the Russians make a bomb that will burn the skin right off of an Imperialist Pig, then the Americans have to build something that will fry those Communist Pinko's to the bone. Where and when will it end?

I often wonder how many accidents there have already been with chemical bombs and nuclear weapons that are unknown to the public.

It's no wonder we have a problem with acid rain and holes in the ozone layer. If people would only use their heads, they would realize that the earth is the only place we have to live. Where do we go when it's gone?

1988 and the environment

Bruce Fogelberg
Opinion Writer

1988 was a year of great environmental awareness -- and for good reason. Look at the year's past environmental headlines: vanishing rain forests, acid rain, air pollution, toxic waste, droughts, floods and water pollution.

The list is long and it begins with the burning of thousands of acres of rain forest. The continual destruction of these rain forests is driving almost 100 species of animals to extinction each day; in addition, the destruction of the rain forests is linked to strange and destructive weather, and is also depleting a major source of oxygen for the entire world.

The list continues with the greenhouse effect which has begun to show warning signs such as last summer's droughts and floods all over the world. The greenhouse effect is caused by CO2 emissions from factories and automobiles. The use of chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) which trap the earth's heat 20,000 times more efficiently than the air are also contributing to the greenhouse effect. CFC molecules destroy ozone molecules which prevent the sun's ultraviolet rays from endangering life on earth.

Then there's the garbage; the problem is so bad we have even tried to ship the problem to someone else. Our throwaway society has washed up medical refuse onto public beaches, killed countless different types of sea life and choked the water to the point cover; it must be a serious problem. The entire issue deals with many of the environmental problems that face us today, and it offers some pretty wise solutions. This issue is also the source of some of the facts that I have used in this article.

We are finally starting to realize that the earth is a very fragile place on which we are allowed to live. But we still continue to destroy what is really not ours to destroy. We are responsible for the future tenants who will also want to live as we live now.

It will be a sad day if our children are reading about the whales and the natural environment out of a history book instead of being able to enjoy God's greatest gift as we have been able to do. The earth is beginning to die because of the abuse that we give it. The time has come to make changes that will prevent further abuse and to clean up the damage that has been done.

I offer a challenge to those who care: I challenge you to make your own individual effort in your personal and professional lives to make this world a better place for our children. Individual efforts can lead to collective efforts, and we must start now. Recycling your garbage, using solar energy and biodegradable products is a great way to start. Voicing your opinion and creating political pressure will lead to tougher policies and regulations by our government.

"It will be a sad day if our children are reading about the whales and the natural environment, out of a history book instead of being able to enjoy God's greatest gift as we have been able to do."

which it is no longer safe to go near. Garbage, sewage, toxins and factory wastes are dumped into the seas everyday, and the oceans, which many consider to be the earth's last undiscovered frontier, are beginning to die.

TIME magazine's man of the year just happens to be the planet earth. Yes, the earth finally made the famous ble for the care of this planet, for it is home not only to us, but also to future generations. We constantly talk about providing a safe and peaceful world for our children, yet we still continue to act for ourselves. We must realize that we are not the landlords of this earth, rather we are only short-term tenants, and that we must take care of this

The Reagan record on financial aid gets an F

College Press Service

Eight years after they rode into Washington, D.C., pledging to change federal student aid forever, members of the Reagan administration can say they succeeded. In their wake, they're leaving students who generally have to borrow money they used to receive as grants.

Virtually all observers, whether conservative or liberal, say the dramatic shift in financial aid programs from grants to loans probably is the administration's most enduring campus accomplishment.

"Debt," President of the United States Student Association (USSA) Fred Azcarate said "is the great legacy of the Reagan administration for students."

Still others are disappointed that the trend away from grants wasn't faster.

"The intent of financial aid was to supplement the cost (of a college education)," contended Jeanne Allen of the Heritage Foundation, a conservative think tank that helped develop many of the administration's campus policies.

"It was never meant to guarantee everyone gets a college education," she continued. "Ronald Reagan's goal was to get back to the original intent... to ensure full access to a college education, but not that it would be fully paid by the federal government."

Allen said Reagan largely succeeded in "making sure only the people who were deserving got aid money."

President Reagan came into office with other education goals, too, like abolishing the Department of Education, shifting the responsibility for funding campuses from Washington to the states and, of course, drastically cutting the federal budget for schools and colleges.

But "the announced intention to decrease expenditures... never materialized," noted Terrel Bell, Reagan's first education secretary.

It wasn't for lack of trying. In his first two budget proposals and again in 1987, the president tried to cut some major programs by as much as half.

"We forced Congress to decide the programs are not expendable," said Edward Elmendorf, who was assistant secretary for postsecondary education from 1982 to 1985. "Congress had a chance each year to take a (vote) on how much programs should be cut, and what their impact would be."

"They repeatedly asked for cuts in student aid, but that was rejected by Congress," recalled Charles Saunders of the American Council on Education (ACE), a lobbying group for campus presidents from around the nation.

"They wanted to do away with student aid," asserted Rick Jerue, staff director of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee. "Things would have been far worse if Congress had not opposed the Reagan administration on cuts," he added.

Most direct aid to campuses for libraries and housing were in fact abolished, as were aid programs like student Social Security and the Middle Income Student Assistance Act.

In the process of attacking those and other programs, "they did manage to throw student aid programs into disarray and confusion, and we've fallen behind the actual purchasing power of 1980," Saunderson of the ACE claimed.

The shift from grants, which students don't have to repay, to loans was probably the most significant and longlasting byproduct.

"The shift from grants to loans was not a fluke," Gwendolyn L. Lewis of the College Board said. "It will probably continue. We're not likely to see a shift (back to grants) in the future."

Lewis said that in the mid-1970s 80 percent of the federal aid given to students was in the form of grants. By 1987-88, it was down to 47 percent.

C. Ronald Kimberling, who served in the Education Department under Reagan, blamed Jimmy Carter. "The most astronomical-growth in loans came in the Carter administration," he said, adding that the government loaned $7.8 billion to students in 1981, up from 1.9 billion in 1978.

However, the amount of money granted to students also rose during the same period. Much of the increased loan money was given to middle-class students, who had been made eligible for student loans for the first time.

The write stuff

Timothy L. Franklin
News Editor

Well, I'm finally back to column writing again. It's been a while since I have been on these pages on a regular basis, so it will take some time for me to get back into the swing of things.

One thing I must mention is that if you have any problems at UMD with any aspect of campus life just drop me a line and I will see what or who is responsible for the problem. Better yet, write a letter to the editor. It might catch somebody's eye, and they might either explain why there is a problem or actually fix the problem.

You have to realize you have a lot of power out there if you only decide to use it. Well, here it goes.

Winter brings many problems for students at UMD. Some students must buy a snow shovel for the first time and then decide among their roommates who will shovel. It also brings the cold. Students find it hard to start their cars when the temperatures are below zero.

Another problem the snow brings to UMD is limited parking space for students. When it is cold, people are more likely to drive to campus and want a place close to the building in which to park.

Harry Michalick, captain of police and head of the UMD Parking Committee, suggests that students develop a ride-share program. This idea, if organized, could alleviate some of the problems of parking, but it is not a solution. Students start classes at different times and end classes at different times. This would make it hard for this program to work if it was developed.

Studies need to be started that could look into ramp and parking lot proposals. Contrary to the popular belief of some administrators, parking is a real problem on this campus. Many spots were taken away last year in the residential neighborhoods around UMD. The neighborhoods around UMD must be able to find a center ground in which to meet the students.

Students usually don't like to park in those $6 pay lots. But don't feel bad if you get a ticket. When University of Minnesota President Nils Hasselmo was up visiting UMD last month, some administrators parked in the area underneath the dining center. One of those administrators who parked there and received a ticket was Chancellor Ianni. The campus police officer who wrote the ticket got some heat for it, but at least he was administering the law fairly. That's what we pay them for, right?

I know I wouldn't have a problem parking on this campus if I had my own designated place or a spot in a heated garage. Some of these people deserve a spot close to the buildings on campus, but they must realize what students have to go through. I found out from a reliable source that a member of the Parking Committee just got a brand-new parking spot right behind the administration building this fall. This person also claims that there is not a parking problem at UMD. Parking? No problem.

Another problem that surfaces during the winter months at UMD is snow removal. Usually they do an excellent job on campus, but some areas are continually missed. One of those areas is the sidewalk and bridge by Stadium Drive which leads out to St. Marie Street. This is usually never shoveled. Perhaps they could put some crime-time people out there to do this instead of what they usually do. In some departments on this campus, they cut student workers' hours back and put crime-timers in to do their work. This place never ceases to amaze me. There are several other problem areas on this campus dealing with snow removal. One is the path leading up to the Student Health Clinic. Sometimes it's shoveled and other times it's not. It's a bad enough walking up the hill when you're sick let alone walking up the hill when you're sick and it's not shoveled. People who have to use a wheelchair have a hard time using their own health clinic when this happens. This problem should be fixed to ensure that all people on our campus have access to this health facility.

Another problem is the huge drifts of snow piled up on the sides of the roads by the snow removal crews. Many of the drifts are up to seven feet high or more. Drivers cannot see other cars driving on College Street. This is an accident waiting to happen. This current situation must be rectified in the near future to ensure the safety of all drivers in the UMD area.

One last note: If you have any suggestions as to how we can improve our news section, be sure to jot them down and drop them by the STATESMAN office. We want to give you the best paper possible, and we need your input to do that. You can also reach me at the STATESMAN office anytime during office hours by calling 726-7112.

Winter Carnival plans variety of entertainment

Kris Vickerman
Staff Writer

There is surely something for everyone during this year's Winter Carnival which will take place during the week of Jan. 23-28. Fifteen UMD organizations are contributing their time and energy into making this year's carnival the most exciting ever.

These organizations include Rec Sports, the Outdoor Club, the Kirby Program Board, Sigma Phi Kappa, Alpha Phi Omega, Gamma Sigma Sigma, the Communication Club, MPIRG, the UMD Greek Council, the Resident Hall Activities Board, 1st Street Gang, Phi Sigma Xi, Student Association, Alpha Nu Oméga and Wooda Wuch!

According to Ann Mooney, chairperson for the Winter Carnival Committee, this year's Winter Carnival Court will be a unique one.

"One couple from each class will be selected for the royal court. Nominations will be taken from Jan. 18-24, and voting will take place on the 26 and 27 only," she said.

Students will be allowed to nominate and vote for one male and one female from their class. Each couple will then be crowned at the '50s dance on Saturday, Jan. 28.

According to Mooney, the donating clubs on campus were extremely willing and helpful, although she would like to see more organizations get involved with these and other activities.

"If more UMD organizations were involved," Mooney stated, "there could be more events for students to participate in."

Mooney would also like to give credit to those individuals on the Winter Carnival Committee not involved with any particular organization who have also been a tremendous help.

Discounts at various businesses around Duluth are available upon presentation of a Winter Carnival button. The buttons will be sold in KSC at the Winter Carnival table at a cost of 25 cents each.

These discounts include: a cent off any clothing item in the Bulldog Shop, $2 off any large 2-item pizza and $3 off any large 3-item pizza from Domino's Pizza, $1 bonus every visit to the Hyland Plasma Center, a ski tune-up at Ski Hut for only $12 (regularly $20), $1 off any large pizza at Kid's Korner Pizza, $1 off a 14" pizza and $2 off a 16" pizza from Sammy's Pizza Palace, 10 percent off any purchase at The Electric Fetus and 10 percent off all tanning products with purchase of a tanning package at The Tan Line. Rebates are good throughout Winter Carnival Week.

One of the first things you will notice on Monday is the decorations in the Kirby Student Center sponsored by Sigma Phi Kappa. The Rec Sports Facility will also have decorations sponsored by the Rec Sports staff. Both organizations have spent quite a bit of time helping students get into the spirit of Winter Carnival so be sure to take a moment to enjoy the effect.

Other activities taking place on Monday include royal court nominations from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. sponsored by Sigma Phi Kappa; Quinzee Hut Building at 2 p.m. on the Kirby Terrace which is open to anyone and sponsored by Wooda Wuch! and the Outdoor Club (the huts will be available to sleep in all week); a popcorn sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega; and a hockey babies table from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. sponsored by Gamma Sigma Sigma where students can guess which baby picture matches up with each UMD hockey player.

At noon in Kirby Lounge the Communication Club will sponsor a Win, Lose or Draw tournament fashioned after the television show of the same name.

Winter Carnival Open Skate will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Multipurpose Ice Facility. MPIRG, the sponsor of Open Skate, will be serving hot chocolate during that time.

The UMD Greek Council is sponsoring a Lip Sync Contest which will be held from 1-3 p.m. in the Bull Pub.

Tuesday's events include a snow sculpture contest from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Lake Superior Hall/Griggs Circle with judging taking place at 4 p.m. by the Resident Hall Activities Board; the Win, Lose or Draw tournament finals at noon in Kirby Lounge; a keg-throwing contest at noon on the Kirby Terrace sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega; and a talent show at 8 p.m. in the Bull Pub sponsored by the Kirby Program Board Special Events Committee.

The excitement continues on Wednesday beginning with WAKX's morning show LIVE with RJ and Dave being broadcast from the Kirby Cafe from 6-9 a.m.

Kirby Terrace will be busy all day with a snow volleyball tournament sponsored by Alpha Nu Omega and a beach party contest sponsored by Sigma Phi Kappa both scheduled for noon. The beach party contest will include a dry tropical bar and prizes will be awarded for the best beach costume (bring your lawn chairs, lifeguard apparel, swimsuits, sunglasses, tanning lotion, etc.-- frostbite treatment will be available!).

A triathlon consisting of a snowball toss, a sled race and a caterpillar race will be held at noon on the concourse behind Griggs Hall notoriously known as Griggs Beach. The triathlon is sponsored by the Resident Hall Activities Board, and the sign-up sheet is at the LSH information desk. Teams must have four members to qualify.

The 1st Street Gang will be sponsoring a popcorn sale from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., and the hockey babies table will be set up again from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

There will be a showing of that old favorite childhood movie, Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory (I want a golden goose NNNNOOOOOWWWWW, Daddy!) at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the Bull Pub for only $1. This is sponsored by the Kirby Program Board Films Committee.

Finally Wednesday comes to a close with the annual Dating Game sponsored by Student Association. It will be held at 8 p.m. in the Kirby Ballroom. Candidates for the Dating Game were selected from the applications handed out earlier this year. This event is always fun and good for a few laughs -- don't miss it!

Thursday's events include royal court voting from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. sponsored by Gamma Sigma Sigma; a snowshoe race at noon on the Kirby Terrace sponsored by Wooda Wuch! and the Outdoor Club; and, for something truly unique, a ski bash at Spirit Mountain sponsored by the Winter Carnival Committee and the Kirby Program Board.

The ski bash used to be a UMD tradition but hasn't been done for years. This year it's finally being brought back by popular demand! First, there will be skiing from 3-9 p.m. then a DJ Dance from 9 p.m. to midnight. Transportation will even be provided from Kirby to Spirit Mountain at 2:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m. and from Spirit Mountain to UMD at 9 p.m. and again at midnight.

The cost is $8 for a lift ticket or $12 for rental and lift. Rental and lift tickets are available at the Eagle's Nest at Spirit Mountain Thursday only. The dance will also be held at the Eagle's Nest. Transportation is $1 round trip and admission for the DJ Dance is $2 with a Winter Carnival button or $3 without a button. We hope to see you on the slopes!

Friday, Jan. 27, is the last day to vote for a couple from your class for the royal court. Other activities include the Carnival to 9A

This week's featured club is the UMD Communication Club.

Since communication is one of the largest majors on campus, it's not surprising that the Communication Club has a large membership.

There are 30-35 active members in the club, as well as about 40 more people who have paid the yearly dues, said Brenda Bakken, the club's president.

The club is made up of mostly communication majors and minors, but other students often come to hear some of the speakers the club sponsors, Bakken said.

Sponsoring speakers is one of the club's major activities. They try to have a speaker at every meeting, which is twice a month.

The speakers usually represent different companies in the area, and they talk about jobs available in different communication fields.

Since communication is such a broad area, "speakers are really beneficial for everyone, not just communication majors," Bakken said.

Bakken said non-communication majors are welcome to hear the speakers.

"That's great with us. Our goal is to give people knowledge. Our motto is 'see what we can do for you'," Bakken said.

One of their most recent speakers was Pauline Davies, a national sales manager from Edgell Communications.

"A lot of speakers talk about how they got to where they are, or let people know typical routes to getting a job. A lot of people throw in stuff about resumes and selling yourself, too," she said.

Bakken said finding speakers is a "learning experience in itself."

"It's a good way to learn how to network and get contacts. You have to learn how to be professional. I've learned a lot about business etiquette," she said.

Speakers have been more than willing to come and talk to the club, Bakken said.

The club provides a good audience for speakers because people are there because they want to be.

Another activity the club is planning is a trip to the Twin Cities campus in April for Advertising Career Day.

Last year UMD had the second largest university representation next to the Twin Cities campus, which Bakken thought was pretty impressive.

The day consists of different seminars which students can attend. Sessions include things like how to look for a job and writing a resume, as well as speakers from places like the Star Tribune.

Last year, Bakken heard a comment that the Communication Club was a "clique" organization, and she hopes that the academic activities of the club have helped to change its image.

However, the club is also involved in some fun activities, which are also important to the club.

They sponsored a limbo contest for homecoming, they were active in the "Fill Romano to the Rim" basketball game last weekend and they are sponsoring a Win, Lose or Draw game for Winter Carnival next week.

They also have a volleyball team and participated in a snow softball tournament.

Bakken said the social side of the club is important.

"It's a way of getting people to know each other outside of academics. You can't study 24 hours a day," she said.

"It's only natural to have fun at school, and if school isn't fun, you're not going to enjoy your experience," Bakken added.

The dance is sponsored by the Winter Carnival Committee.

Unless otherwise specified, sign-up for all events will be at the Winter Carnival table located in Kirby from Jan. 18-27.

As you can plainly see, there is definitely something for everyone during this year's Winter Carnival.

"The purpose of Winter Carnival is to cure mid-winter blues and to provide one week out of the cold, hard Duluth winter to have fun with snow. I hope this is what Winter Carnival does," Mooney said.

With all the events taking place, her wish shouldn't be a problem!

A pair of sophomore forwards named Dave, along with the biggest and most intimidating player in the

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Northern Intercollegiate Conference, combines with big-time play from two big reserves to make the UMD Men's Basketball team's front line one of the strongest in non-Division I basketball.

The starting forwards -- Dave Zollar and Dave Hauser -- stand at 6'7" and 6'6", respectively. Respectively is how opposing forwards are going to have to start treating them. These two like to be aggressive with the ball. In each of the past five games, Zollar and Hauser have both scored in double figures.

Zollar leads the team in scoring with a 16.3 points per game average, and he also leads the team in assists (63), steals (32) and three-point shooting (.605 percentage, 26 of 43). Hauser received his first start six games ago and hasn't given back the starting position since, averaging 13.1 points a game in his six starts.

The Bulldog center, Jay Guidinger, is considered by many to be the most dominating player going into the beginning of the conference schedule. He is shooting at a team-high .608 clip (96-158) and is pulling down nearly ten rebounds a game (9.9) -- more than any other two Bulldogs combined. His shot blocking and his fearsome "Catch and DUNK" gains him the label of being "intimidating."

Comparing himself with Zollar, Guidinger said that "Zollar has more flash, but I think we are similar in the way we play. We both have the same attitude that we want to be perfect on and off the court."

"(Coach Dale) Race recruits players who think like him," said Guidinger, who, with 368 career rebounds is, barring injury, on pace to eventually become the all-time leader in rebounding in UMD history. Jay's older brother Jeff is the current record-holder with 731 career boards.

Former starting forward Lonnie Schock and Chris Listau, with the exception of UM-Morris, could start on any other team in the league. It's a convenience many coaches don't have, being able to substitute post-men freely in case a Guidinger or a Hauser gets into foul trouble.

door track season underway on Saturday, Jan. 28.

Both the men's and the women's teams will host the event in the UMD Fieldhouse which will begin at 3 p.m.

With Michigan Tech and Northern Michigan attending the meet, head coach Eleanor Rynda thinks that her teams have their work cut out for them.

"We're going to work really hard this week and direct all our efforts to really be ready for this one," she said.

According to Rynda, the teams are progressing slowly.

"You always run into your early season kinds of nagging injuries before you really get going," she said.

With a record of 2-1 in the conference the UMD Women's Basketball team could be on its way to a conference championship. The Bulldogs will return to their home court this weekend to play in the Northern Sun Conference against Winona State Saturday at 3 p.m.

The Bulldogs opened up conference play last Friday against the undefeated defending champion Northern State. UMD walked away with a clean victory of 81-66. Northern State suffered their loss as Dina Kangas powered UMD to the 15-point win. Kangas scored 31 points and pulled down 11 rebounds, while teammate Mary Zgonc had 14 points and 12 rebounds. Denise Holm also added seven points and nine assists to the Bulldogs' score.

The Bulldogs' winning streak didn't last long, however. After the victory UMD suffered a two-point loss against Southwest State.

"With hindsight behind us now," coach Karen Stromme said, "I look at it as we simply took them (Southwest) very much too lightly."

"Southwest played their best game of the year against us, and that's the beauty of competitive sports," Stromme said. "Any team can beat any other team at any given time when the conditions are right."

"It was a poor game for us," Stromme said. "Southwest played excellent -- you don't want to take it away from them. They played great. Southwest shot 65 percent in the first half from the floor. The first five minutes of the game sets the course for us, and we were just flatfooted and slow."

"If we don't learn from this we could be in big trouble," Stromme said, "but with the nature of our team and the competitiveness of it, the bus on the way home was like a morgue. The loss was not goals in those three losses. They were still locked in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association's lower half. Could anything save the pucksters from UMD? Then a wise man said, "Go East, young man, go East."

Coach Mike Sertich and the UMD Hockey team will try to get their game back on track this weekend as they travel to the East coast to face Boston College, New Hampshire and Boston University in three Hockey East/WCHA contests.

UMD will face the Terriers of Boston University on Friday evening at BU's Brown Arena. BU currently holds down fourth place in Hockey East with a 5-8-1 conference record and an 8-12-1 mark overall.

On Saturday the Bulldogs will travel north to Durham,

N.H., to face the University of New Hampshire Wildcats. UNH is in the middle of a dismal season since they are 4-11-0 in conference play (sixth in Hockey East) and 7-15-0 overall.

On Monday night UMD squares off against the Boston College Eagles in BC's brand new home, the 7,884-seat Silvio Conte Forum. The Eagles are currently in second place in Hockey East (behind last year after they defeated New Hampshire 7-1, beat Boston College 5-1 and tied Boston University 4-4, all at Duluth Arena. Boston College defeated UMD 4-2 in the first round of last year's Long Island Invitational in Uniondale, N.Y.

UMD suffered a rough weekend in south central Wisconsin when they were swept by the University of Wisconsin. Friday evening the Badgers got UMD down early and kept them down on the way to a 5-1 Badger win.

Wisconsin freshman goalie Curtis Joseph made several incredible saves to keep the Bulldogs at bay, including a robbery of Stu Plante on an open break to take the wind out of the UMD sails. Junior defenseman Dale Jago scored the lone Bulldog goal.

Saturday night's contest had a different flavor -- the Bulldogs played the Badgers no scoring in the third period since both Hyduke and Joseph played very well. Wisconsin's Dennis Snedden ended the game at 2:16 of overtime as he beat Hyduke between the pads on a quick shot.

The losses dropped the Bulldogs to 9-14-1 in conference play and seventh in the WCHA. They own a 12-14-1 overall record.

dogs were 13-12-2 overall ... an overwhelming 70 percent of the Bulldog hockey players say that Joe Montana and the San Francisco 49ers will defeat Ickey Woods and the Cincinnati Bengals in this weekend's Super Bowl XXIII ... This weekend's series with BU, BC and UNH will be the last time UMD will face Hockey East teams under the five-year WCHA/HEA merger that expires after this season ... Jerry Chumola and Dale Jago remain tied for the Bulldog scoring lead with 25 points each, Chris Lindberg, Scott Keller and Dennis Vaske are next with 23, 22 and 21 points respectively ... Defenseman Brett Hauer of Richfield, forward Craig Karakas of White Bear Lake, forward Jason Bortolussi of Thunder Bay and defenseman Jeff Parrott of Saskatchewan have all orally committed to play hockey for UMD next season ... The game with Boston College must loom heavily on the Bulldogs horizon since BC has become one of the country's best hockey teams. The Eagles have killed off close to 90 percent of their penalties this season and are rated sixth nationwide in the latest NCAA hockey poll.

UMD had a collective 2-1-1 record against these teams developing the post players is assistant coach Butch Kuronen.

"Butch is vital to the success of the post players in years past and this year," Guidinger said. "He works with the big men in practice, shows us what we need to improve upon."

A strong inside game is definitely nothing new for the Bulldogs. It was just a season ago when the front three consisted of two NAIA All-Americans (David Thompson, third team, and Jim Olson, Honorable Mention) and Guidinger. It was only two years ago that Jeff Guidinger was the Bulldogs' center and All-American (third team). How does that cliché go? They don't rebuild UMD's front line, they reload it.

The Bulldogs will put their 18-game NIC winning streak on the line Friday and Sunday when they travel to Winona State University and Southwest State University. Friday's game at 7:30 p.m. showcases perhaps the best team in the NIC (UMD) and the best scorer in the NIC (Winona State's guard Carter Glad). The Warriors' junior center Tim Lang is their leading rebounder, gathering six a game...The Bulldogs will travel five hours from Winona to Marshall, Minn., for a 2 p.m. game on Sunday against Southwest State...UMD, which has reeled off four straight victories, is 11-5 overall and 1-0 in the NIC. Winona State is 5-10 in all games and will open its NIC slate Friday night. the women's team, which is small but strong this season, consisting of about a dozen members.

The men also come back with a strong team. They sport a strong hurdler core as well as a good distance core led by Tom Gries and Nick Madison.

"We need to work on our sprint crew," Rynda said. "We lost three key sprinters to graduation last year."

The team is also weak in the throwing events, according to Rynda.

"We're hoping to put something together and to build slowly and carefully," she said.

Last Saturday, the Bulldog track teams hosted their annual Alumni meet where the runners of old met the teams of the new.

The varsity teams came out on top for both the men and the women as the ladies varsity downed the alumni 77-25 and the men outdistanced their elders 99-49.

The varsity team dominated the women's events although there were only three alumni participants, and the varsity took first places in all but three events.

Koebnick set a record mark in the 220 yard dash posting a :28.2 time eclipsing Julie Hay's former record of :28.4. Sue Wurl made her mark in the 880 event for the alumni team as she broke her own record with a time of 2:26.

The men had a slightly stronger turnout with the alumni, but the results were the same since the varsity netted 13 first place finishes to the alumni's two.

The men showed their strength in many events, but seemed to be the strongest in the distance races with the two mile run going to Madison (9:56.4) and the one miler going to Paul Nisius (4:33).

Wrestlers head to NIC Dual Meets

UMD returned from Grand Forks, N.D. on Saturday a little bruised and battered, but with an impressive nine out of fifteen wrestlers placing in the Sioux Open. Wrestlers from the University of North Dakota, the University of Minnesota and the University of Iowa attended the meet along with numerous unattached wrestlers from other schools.

Trevor Lundgren boosted his already impressive season record at the Sioux Open by winning the championship in the 142 lb. weight class. Lundgren pinned all three of his opponents on the way to increasing his record to 24 wins with 11 pins.

Other UMD wrestlers placing at the meet were Al Mullenbach in the 134 lb. weight class, Dan Bjerga in the 150 lb. class and Brad Simon in the 158 lb. class. These three all had impressive second place finishes. Placing third for UMD was Steve McDonough in the 158 lb. weight class, Paul Thein in the 177 lb. weight class and Paul Kremer in the 190 lb. class.

Besides the meet at Grand Forks, UMD also had a dual meet with Itasca Community College in the Romano Gym last Tuesday. UMD won with a score of 26-16 in spite of the fact that many of their varsity wrestlers did not participate.

This weekend the Cougars of UM-Morris will be hosting the Northern Intercollegiate Conference Tournament which will be a round robin tournament and will include all five schools in the conference -- UMD, UM-Morris, Northern State, Southwest State and Moorhead State. The team with the best record in the tournament will be declared the winner.

In three weeks UMD will host the Individual NIC Wrestling Tournament. Last year the NIC teams finished in the same order in both the team tournament and the individual tournament.

Injuries play a part on any sports team, and wrestling at UMD is no exception. Several players have spent a large part of the season unable to wrestle or have been able to wrestle but not as effectively because of their injuries. This Saturday three of the wrestlers who have been out with injuries will be trying to regain their starting positions. Jim Lelwica, out most of the season with a knee injury, will try to compete this week, along with Todd Guillaume. Dave Schaefer, who was out last weekend, is also about to start wrestling again. This still leaves Scott Swanson out with a shoulder separation. Hopefully, UMD can be at full strength by the end of the season for the final tournaments.

taken lightly by our team. I know that this team wants to do well and play well."

That's exactly what the team did in Tuesday's game against Bemidji State. The Bulldogs defeated the Beavers in a road game 68-63, thanks to a three-point shot that Kelli Ritzer sank with 1:56 to go in the game. The Bulldogs had a safe lead of 36-27 at halftime, but the Beavers fought back to a 55-55 tie with 6:34 remaining. The three-pointer broke the 61-61 tie and put the Bulldogs in the lead to stay.

Kangas led UMD with 23 points and 12 rebounds, Zgonc added 13 points and eight rebounds and Ritzer had 13 points and seven rebounds for the win. The Bulldogs now hold a 12-5 overall record with a dozen games left on the current schedule.

IM hockey '89: rougher and tougher

Lee Sjoquist
Staff Writer

The most popular sport in the state is back again this year at UMD on Tuesday and Thursday nights in the Multipurpose Ice Facility.

Intramural hockey is going along with a full head of steam, with 29 teams in five men's divisions.

Each year brings expectations of tough competition and intensity. This year is no different!

A brand new lineup of talented teams, mixed with some of the hockey dynasties that have been around awhile, should make for a season full of surprises, upsets and even a few dance lessons.

Nearing the halfway point in the season, it appears there are many teams capable of winning it all.

Folska's Fullhouse, last year's champions, is back and a powerful threat again even though they suffered an earlier loss to a new team, The Destroyers.

Some other teams bidding for championship status are the Sugar Magnolias, Art's Revenge, Special Units and the Hobie Bakers, all of whom are undefeated.

One of the big surprises of the season could be found in The Destroyers, comprised mostly of freshmen. This group should be watched.

Both Paradise and Naturally Brewed, although not topping the standings, should not be counted out.

It's still too early to tell much, but as the season progresses, the level of physical play also progresses.

Even though intramurals have a "no checking" policy, physical contact is going to be a part of any competitive hockey league.

This year, intramural hockey has matched and probably exceeded the physical and intensity levels characteristic of years past.

The physical contact aspect is being felt by the referees, whose jobs sometimes are to stand between and separate disagreeing players, much like WWF Wrestling.

Mark Laskow, two-year referee and member of the Hobie Bakers (3-0), said "It's been a rough season, I've broken up three or four fights this year already, and we had to suspend one game."

Many of the players feel that physical play is useful in intimidating the opponent.

It can all be summed up in a simple equation:

Winning = Raw talent + Intimidation + Luck

so if: Intimidation = Physical Contact + Size we can substitute:

Winning = Raw talent + (Physical Contact + Size) + Luck

Math can be useful, but another explanation of hockey violence is the goon factor. Guys that may have seen Slapshot one too many times have the philosophy, "It doesn't matter whether you win or lose, it's how you inflict the pain."

No matter which way you look at it, physical contact is going to be a part of any hockey game, and the theory of no checking has the same impact as traffic laws.

With a little less than four weeks remaining in the season there does not appear to be a runaway favorite, but a number of teams are confident they will be victorious when all is said and done.

Good luck to all teams.

For those students who like to see a good game, you can watch intramural hockey on Tuesday and Thursday nights in the Multipurpose Ice Facility.

Keep the "snow" out of your "shoes"

Jay Faherty
Staff Writer

Are you tired of having snow piled up inside your shoes because it's too deep? Or are you interested in seeing the beauty of winter where most people can't travel? Well, the UMD Outdoor Program may have just the thing for you this winter with its snowshoe outings.

Grant Bremer is conducting the first two outings scheduled for today and next Thursday, Jan. 26.

These outings will be of a similar nature and are routed on upper Lester River.

The cost for these outings is $2 for UMD students and $4 for all others and includes all instruction, travel and snowshoes.

Bremer refers to these outings as an 'Introduction to Snowshoeing' and said that he will lead as many as six individuals on each of them.

For those of you who are not aware of what exactly snowshoeing is, Bremer can be very informative.

The actual snowshoe covers almost six times the surface area as a regular boot, making it possible to walk on snow instead of sinking down to your waist in it.

For those of you interested in trying this on your own, the Kirby Games Room has snowshoes available for rent for only $3 per day.

Perhaps Thursday afternoons are not convenient for you, but you would still like to try snowshoeing. Beth Ruark is leading an outing to Hartley Field from 1-5 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 28.

Ruark is offering her expertise and snowshoes for the affordable cost of absolutely nothing.

To top it off, there will be room for up to 15 people to accompany her. Surely you can't pass up such a bargain!

For those of you who avidly enjoy the outdoors, Bremer has planned an ice fishing/winter camping weekend from Feb. 3-5.

The trip will take place on Little Trout Lake in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area off Gun Flint Trail.

He plans on snowshoeing about 2.5 miles into the BWCA, setting up camp in Quinzee huts (snow caves) and topping the trip off with fishing for lake trout.

This excursion will cost $34 for UMD students and $49 for all others.

Surely there must be something here that interests you a little bit. If you need some additional information or would like to sign up, beat the lines and give Bremer a call at 726-7169.

And for those of you looking for something to do over spring break, forget the heat of Mazatlan and find out about the Backcountry Ski Trip in Colorado. There will be more on that in upcoming issues of the STATESMAN.

Hockey from 15A

Watch, too, for the playoffs. Those of you who are equipped with all the necessary gear, including a helmet with a mask, who are not involved in intramural hockey, but would like to play informal pick-up hockey, there is open hockey in the Multipurpose Ice Facility on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings.

There is also plenty of free open skating for those who just want to skate.

For times, contact Rec Sports at 726-7128. Get involved!

You don't need your parents' money to buy a Macintosh.

It's never been difficult for students to convince their parents of the need for a Macintosh® computer at school.

Persuading them to write the check, however, is another thing altogether.

Which is why Apple created the Student Loan-to-Own Program. An ingenious loan program that makes buying a Macintosh as easy as using one.

Simply pick up an application at the location listed below, or call 800-831-LOAN. All your parents need to do is fill it out, sign it, and send it. If they qualify, they'll receive a check for you in just a few weeks.

There's no collateral. No need to prove financial hardship. No application fee.

Best of all, the loan payments can be spread over as many as 10 years.

Which gives you and your parents plenty of time to decide just who pays for it all.
